Freeze the Balls off a Brass Monkey

It was necessary to keep a good supply of cannon balls near the cannon on old war ships. But how to prevent them from rolling about the deck was the problem. The storage method devised was to stack them as a square based pyramid, with one ball on top, resting on four, resting on nine, which rested on sixteen.

Thus, a supply of 30 cannon balls could be stacked in a small area right next to the cannon. There was only one problem -- how to prevent the bottom layer from sliding/rolling from under the others.

The solution was a metal plate with 16 round indentations, called, for reasons unknown, a Monkey. But if this plate were made of iron, the iron balls would quickly rust to it. The solution to the rusting problem was to make them of brass - hence, Brass Monkeys.

Few landlubbers realize that brass contracts much more and much faster than iron when chilled. Consequently, when the temperature dropped too far, the brass indentations would shrink so much that the iron cannon balls would come right off the monkey.

Thus, it was quite literally, cold enough to freeze the balls off a brass monkey. And all this time, folks thought that was just a vulgar expression?

Distinguished Sailors Series of Stamps Unveiled

On Thursday, February 4th, 2010, the US Postal Service and the US Navy Memorial introduced the latest set of stamps to honor those who served our nation. The Distinguished Sailors stamps highlights four men (William S. Sims, Arleigh A. Burke, John McCloy and Doris "Dorie" Miller) who, throughout their service, preformed many feats of excellence. The event attracted both those ready to get their hands on the new stamps and others who were glad to see the accomplishments of these men given recognition by the Postal Service.

Commander of U.S. naval forces in European waters during World War I, William S. Sims (1858-1936) was an outspoken reformer and innovator who helped shape the Navy into a modern fighting force. After serving as one of the top destroyer squadron commanders of World War II, Raleigh A. Burke (1901-1996) had an equally distinguished postwar career in which he played a major role in modernizing the Navy and guiding its response to the Cold War. Described by a shipmate as "like a bull" who couldn't be stopped, John McCloy (1876-1945) holds the distinction of being one of the few men in the nation's history to earn two Medals of Honor for separate acts of heroism. The first Black American hero of World War II, Doris Miller (1919-1943) became an inspiration to generations of Americans for his actions at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. He was later awarded the Navy Cross. (Actor Cuba Gooding, Jr., portrayed Miller in the 2001 movie Pearl Harbor.)

"No man who refuses to bear arms in defense of his nation can give a sound reason why he should be allowed to live in a free country"

Summaries of the offered tours:

USS Yorktown: Priceless war planes used during wars and conflicts spanning from WWII to Desert Storm are featured aboard the Yorktown's 40,000 square foot hanger bay and atop the 888 foot flight deck. Patriots Point is also the home of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society and their official Medal of Honor Museum with tons of interactive exhibits.

Talk of the Town Guided tour: This is a 90 minute narrated mini bus tour with a driver well-versed in Charleston history. You will enjoy the sights of the many areas of old town Charleston including period homes, market places, public buildings and beautiful churches.

This is a tour with little or NO walking. There is a stop at Battery Park with your choice to walk through the shady park area, look out towards Charleston Harbor or just rest for 10 min.

Ft Sumter: Charleston is full of history at every turn, and one of its most famous claims to fame is Fort Sumpter National Monument, the site where the Civil War began. Tours include a 30-minute narrated cruise through Charleston Harbor and back, as well as an hour to tour the fort and its on-site museum.

Drayton Hall: This is the oldest preserved plantation house in America open to the public and it is dedicated & operated as a National Trust Historic Site circa 1738. It stands alone as the only authentic survivor of Ashley River's colonial past--intact & in near-original condition.

Renowned for its Palladian-inspired architecture and undisturbed, historic landscape, Drayton Hall is a living time line representing centuries of change and continuity in the American South. House tours are conducted by professional guides who share the history.

Magnolia Plantation and Gardens: This is billed as the South's complete plantation experience. It's listed on the National register of Historic Places and it is one of the top 25 most visited historic houses in America.

Our private tour consists of a 20-30 minute guided garden walk followed by a tram tour of former rice fields that have been converted to the exotic Audubon Swamp. We will then have a guided tour of the Magnolia Plantation House. Charles Kuralt, former CBS travel journalist considered this plantation to be "My Greatest Charleston Pleasure". There will then be time for lunch on your own at the outdoor snack bar & a rest stop or gift shop visit.

Hunley Submarine Museum: This is the world's first successful combat submarine and was used by the Confederacy in the Civil War. It sank and was lost for over a century and was finally raised in 2000. It is now shown in a museum in N Charleston. The Hunley submarine is housed in its 90,000 gallon conservation tank. Artifacts found during excavation of the submarine are also displayed. Ordinarily, this museum is only open on weekends. We feel fortunate to have been able to schedule a special tour for our group on Thursday. This museum is 10 minutes away from the site of our Memorial Service.

Lone Sailor Memorial: A replica of "The Lone Sailor" and "The Homecoming" statues are displayed at The Naval Base Memorial where we will conduct our traditional memorial service.

Mail Call

■ I received an e-mail from Andrea Larison Masch, daughter of Cdr. Donald Eddie Larison who informed me that her father had passed away in August 27, 1981. "He was only 43 when he passed away. Actually, he was supposed to be commissioned as a Captain after the cruise on the Plymouth Rock, but was told if he took the cruise he would come back in a casket because of a brain tumor that was found just prior to the cruise leaving. As it turned out, the cruise left in June/July 1981 and he passed away in Aug 1981."

■ Mike Flanagan, QM2, Thomaston, ME (on board 2/77-11/80) writes: Ken Johnson, my Navigator, spent a lot of time helping me put my 06 Reserve package together. His E-mail address: flanme3@msn.com

■ Hollis Stedman, OS2, Altamont, NY (on board 76-79) writes: I AM STILL LOOKING FOR CLIFF CLAUSEN, SMC SUGGS, OSC BILL, AND ET2 NICKEL. IVE CHANGED MY EMAIL AGAIN. MAYBE THIS ONE ILL KEEP FOR A WHILE. GIVE ME A SHOUT. JJ. MEJIA AND DAN PARTINGTON ARE ALIVE AN WELL. JUST FOUND OUT THAT BOATSWAINS MATE PHILLIPS PASSED AWAY LAST YEAR. HE WAS THE EPITOME OF A BOATWAIN, AND AN ALL AROUND GOOD GUY. His E-mail address is: cposted@yahoo.com

■ My Dad, FE Miskelly, served on the USS Plymouth Rock from 1957 to 1961. He passed away on 2/22/10 at 2000 hours. I was able to talk to a couple of his ship mates recently, and for that I am thankful. Dad enjoyed his time in the US Navy and remembered his buddies on the Plymouth Rock. He was aboard during the recovery of the Mercury Capsule in 1961 and helped ferry President Eisenhower's vehicle and helicopter to Brazil. He was also stationed off the coast of Cuba during the 1961 missile crisis. He would often tell me stories of his experiences in the Navy and some of the most memorable places he went. He was excited to make the reunion a couple of years ago at Branson, Missouri. I really wish he could have gone to Charleston, SC this year. He would have loved it. I wanted to let you know so you could add his name to the memorial and to let his shipmates know. We will miss him greatly.

Sincerely,
Francis Todd Miskelly

■ Jerry Brooks, QM2, Charlottesville, VA (on board 3/80-1/83) writes: "Plymouth Rock went to South America in 1981 on Unitas Cruise. Cruise of a lifetime, of course, and enjoyed looking at the cruise book. Unfortunately, the cruise book was lost during a move and I have been wondering how I could get a copy. Was also wondering how the QM and Deck gangs are doing after all these years!" His e-mail address is: gkb7j@virginia.edu

■ Renolds Mckenzie, SN, Fayetteville, NC (on board 2/79-3/80) writes: "Man the memory's. I was on board during the Bermuda trip, Gitmo landings, Jamaica relief and the short trips out of the harbor for assault craft training before Christmas of 79. Left Her in dry dock march of 80. Really sad to think i could be shaving with her. There were alot of great times and I wish I have never left for that A school billet. 😊" His e-mail address is: ota1rooster@hotmail.com

■ Clay Corriveau, E5, US Army, Burnham, ME writes: My uncle who served in WWII, my brother in law Tim Caldwell, who served on the Plymouth Rock in the 70s and a brother all served in the navy; my brother was a navy seal. They all spoke or speak highly of their service in the navy. I served in the army special forces in Vietnam in 62-63 and am very proud of all branches of our military. I have become a WWII buff but am always reading about other wars and all our branches of service. The American Legion had some great articles on WWII submarines lost at sea and the four that have been located. I am very impressed with your web site and wish we had a similar web site to share things and get in touch with people we served with. Great job!!!!!!!!!! 😊

Academy Women to Become 1st Submariners

Female Sailors will begin serving on submarines by the end of next year, with Naval Academy graduates leading the way, Navy leaders told a Senate committee. Navy Secretary Ray Mabus told the Senate Armed Services Committee that the Navy is in a good position to move forward with integrating women onto submarines.

"We think we learned a lot about integrating women in the services years ago, and those lessons are relevant today," Mabus said. Those lessons, he said, include having a "critical mass" of female candidates, having senior women to serve as mentors, and having submarines that don't require modifications: the SSBN ballistic missile and SSGN guided-missile subs. Finally, Mabus said, "We have the lesson learned to make sure any questions are answered, ... and we're very open and transparent on how we'll do this. We think this is a great idea that will enhance our warfighting capabilities."

Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates notified Congress on Feb. 19 of the intended change to Navy policy. Mabus had pushed for the change since taking office in May. Adm. Gary Roughead, chief of naval operations, endorsed the change, saying in a statement released in September that his experience commanding a mixed-gender surface-combatant ship makes him "very comfortable" integrating women into the submarine force. The Navy changed its policy to allow women to serve on combatant ships in 1993.

Besides the incoming officers from the academy, the first women submariners will include female supply corps officers at the department head level, Roughead said. The change will be phased in over time to include enlisted female Sailors on the SSBN and SSGNs, he said. Women will be added to the Navy's SSN fast-attack submarines after necessary modifications can be determined, he said.

[ACTIVE DUTY]

A SPECIAL HOMECOMING

Cmdr. H.B. Le, left, commanding officer of USS Larsen, sailed his destroyer into Da Nang, Vietnam, for a historic and moving port visit late last year. Some 35 years earlier, Le – at the time only 5 years old – and his family fled what was then a country ravaged by war.

"My crew and I are proud to be able to represent our country to the people of Vietnam," he said.

Le escaped Vietnam on a fishing trawler that his father, then a South Vietnamese naval officer, commandeered and sailed to safety. The trawler was crammed with 200 refugees, including Le's family. The vessel drifted for about three days before USS Barbour County rescued the refugees May 2, 1975, as U.S. Pacific Command reports.

Le's family ultimately resettled in Virginia. Le became a U.S. citizen in 1985 and graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1992. But during his dramatic return to Vietnam, he was quick to shine the spotlight on his parents and the people who sponsored his family's "new beginning" in Virginia. "Service to my country by pursuing a naval career – that's my way of trying to give back to them and my parents," Le told Pacific Command.

The Boat Show

By Robert Scanlon
USS CONWAY (DD-507)

It's for you sir...it's the USS Daly.
They couldn't read the message I sent.

Not long ago my son and I went to the Boston Boat show. I dressed as if I had money to spend, that is, I wore all the L.L. Bean clothes I owned. You get a lot more attention this way. There in front of us was the most beautiful cruiser we had ever laid eyes on and aboard we went. First stop was below deck to inspect the living quarters. Back on deck the salesman with the smile to match said, "Well, what do you think of this cruiser?" We answered, "It's OK. We just came aboard to use the Head." Down the gangplank we went. As we looked back, we saw him making a mad dash below deck.

Navy Trivia

Boot camp

During the Spanish-American War, Sailors wore leggings called boots, which came to mean a Navy (or Marine) recruit. These recruits trained in "boot" camps.

Mayday

The distress call for voice radio, for vessels and people in serious trouble at sea. The term was made official by an international telecommunications conference in 1948, and is an anglicizing of the French "m'aidez," (help me).

Radar

An acronym standing for "radio detecting and ranging."

Port and starboard

Port and starboard are shipboard terms for left and right, respectively. Confusing those two could cause a ship wreck. In Old England, the starboard was the steering paddle or rudder, and ships were always steered from the right side on the back of the vessel. Larboard referred to the left side, the side on which the ship was loaded. So how did larboard become port? Shouted over the noise of the wind and the waves, larboard and starboard sounded too much alike. The word port means the opening in the "left" side of the ship from which cargo was unloaded. Sailors eventually started using the term to refer to that side of the ship. Use of the term "port" was officially adopted by the U.S. Navy by General Order, 18 February 1846.

KNOCK OFF WORK: The galleys of sailing ships were once filled with men rowing to the rhythm of a mallet striking a wooden block. It was only time to quit rowing when the knocking stopped.

Side Boys

Tending the side with side boys, as we know it in modern practice, originated long time ago. It was customary in the days of sail to hold conferences on the flagships both when at sea and in open roadstead; also, officers were invited to dinner on other ships while at sea, weather permitting. Sometimes the sea was such that visitors were hoisted aboard in boatswain's chairs. Members of the crew did the hoisting, and it is from the aid they rendered in tending the side that the custom originated of having a certain number of men always in attendance. Some have reported the higher the rank, the heavier the individual; therefore, more side boys.
